Salem's Own Band

The lovers of music, particularly band music, were inspired by the recent concert performance of Salem's American Legion Quaker City band.

The band's program in the High school auditorium was a credit to the members, and the citizens who crowded even the balcony testified by their attentiveness that they were proud of bandsmen whose repertoire includes the most stirring marches as well as the light classical selections.

To Director George Chappell goes much of the praise for reorganizing the band from a nucleus of old-timers of the original Quaker City band. He has been successful in enlisting the services of even some of the younger musicians and after repeated and sometimes weary rehearsals a commendable musical aggregation has been born.

Whether on the concert platform, in an open-air park pavilion or during a snappy parade performance Salem residents are proud to doff their hats to the greenclad Legionnaire band.

Follow The Leader

It sounds strange now in the face of what is known to be true, but only a little while ago there still was official doubt about the disloyalty of party-line Communists in the United States.

The federal government continued to today to them. They were encouraged to operate on the inside track in some labor unions, their shrill claim to protection under the bill of rights was taken seriously. When they called themselves domestic reformers those who gave them the horse-laugh were in danger of being rebuked by Washington.

Public opinion, which always has been ahead of official opinion on Communists, never has held the Communist conspiracy to be a domestic political movement interested in reform. The Communists themselves shattered that illusion years ago. They are agents, they now admit, of a foreign power and will do everything they can do to hurt the United States in the event of war with that power. They did that very thing before Russia was attacked by Germany in June, 1941—sabotaged defense preparations in the United States because that was what Moscow told them to do.

Public opinion decided then and there that native Communists were enemies in America's midst, capable of all degrees of treason. It has taken official opinion nearly a decade to get abreast of public opinion. And official opinion still hasn't settled what public opinion settled long ago—that homegrown conspirators hostile to the United States have no rights which wouldn't be allowed any other member of a conspiracy to overthrow the United States.

Why Drag It Out?

A statewide referendum on the colored oleo issue probably would be favorable to oleo backers and unfavorable to butter backers. This would reflect no public disfavor for butter but only the prevailing popular belief that manufacturers and users of oleo have as much right to use yellow coloring matter as manufacturers and users of butter.

Farmers, dairy interests and butter backers in general would do well to think about this. Their job is to produce and sell butter. Some of them have got sidetracked on the notion that their job is to make things tough for oleo. That's not good sales psychology. If butter is as good as they say it is—and as consumers know it is—its friends should concentrate on getting more people to eat butter, not on getting fewer people to eat oleo.

No one wants to hurt the dairy industry. The whole oleo issue has been unfortunate because it had led to misunderstanding. It has been like the full-buster in the U. S. senate, which has mixed up civil rights and the proposition that no political power bloc should be able to gag a legislative minority in congress. The issues have been confused. They need to be straightened out.

It looks as if colored oleo would be permitted in Ohio, either by the general assembly or by referendum. The issue is as good as settled. There's no use in dragging it out any longer. The butter pro-people had better spend their time from now on talking up butter, instead of talking down oleo.

How It Can Be Done

When two young bandits help up a Baltimore & Ohio train in West Virginia, escaping with enough cash and loot to finance a long hide-out, the police of three states went on the alert. A few hours later, the bandits were in custody, one of them wounded critically. But the role of the police, as it turned out, was minor. Civilians earned the credit.

A bus driver didn't like the looks of two of his passengers. When he tried to talk to them, he didn't like the way they acted. He notified the sheriff in the town where the suspicious strangers had left his bus. The sheriff notified police in Washington, where the pair was headed in another bus. But again it was an alert civilian who spotted them—a pawn broker who didn't like the appearance of two customers who had come into his shop. They were the bandits; they had left Washington-bound bus before it reached the terminal.

Police dream of a day when all civilians will be on the alert for dangerous criminals. If that day ever comes, no criminal will have a chance to get away or to hide out. These things can't be done when civilians are alert and prompt in notifying police authority.

The Stars Say

For Saturday, March 12
By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

THE auguries combine to put to work, along unorthodox or conventional lines, all sorts of dreams, fancies and idealism, in which rare adventures, drives and pastimes may rise to thrilling heights of performance, although the fullest expression of such fancies, imagination and innovation should be rigidly held to practical and sound foundations.

Overdoing, excesses, rash plunges overboard could spoil most promising and lucrative prospects. For highest culminations, hew to the line of practical idealism, steering clear of erratic or spectacular performance.

For the Birthday

Those whose birthday it is, should meet exceptional openings or lures in matter-of-fact performance, although the incitements may be based upon fresh, startling, novel or ingenious patterns.

Keep daydreams and lofty aspirations on a sound and practical basis, even though ideals and hopes be tinged with adventure, romance and gay color. Work for solid issues, even while exploiting the bizarre or unique, for workaday climax. Grasp opportunity, adventure and thrills built on firm and enduring purpose. "Expect the unexpected."

A child born on this day, should be rarely gifted with exceptional talents, keeping to the main stem of reality even in the pursuit of high ideals and aspirations. Adventure, romance and honors are in store.

ONE MAN'S OPINION

BY WALTER KIERNAN

Capt. Odum is rested now and may take a Sunday spin around the world . . . he still has 300 gallons of gas and a crease in his pants.

This may be idle rumor but I understand hom-burgs and gray business suits have been ordered for the Soviet air force to increase its speed and distance.

Of course in the next few weeks Moscow will reveal that the first 36-hour-5,000 mile non-stop flight in a monoplane was made in 1936 by a Russian wearing a Siberian sarong and open-toed ski boots.

And furthermore that he did it with his motor cut off and while flying backwards standing on his head on the left wing.

No one knows just why Bill Odum spends so much time in the air but 500 right-hand-drive cars recently were sold in New York and it may be safer upstairs this summer.

One thing about these right-hand-drive cars, they will keep people who like to drive on the left-hand side of parkways from getting over their top hat.

GUARDING YOUR HEALTH

When Tonsils Should Be Removed

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M. D.

Since the early twenties, it has been estimated that one-third of all the surgical operations performed have been for the removal of tonsils and adenoids and, during that time, there has been a marked change in the attitude toward this operation. In other words, it is done less frequently and at a later age.

It seems to be generally agreed that the tonsils should not be removed in a child under six or seven years of age, unless there are such indications as an infection present in the tonsils themselves or other conditions which are endangering the child's health. Even when the tonsils have been completely removed, re-growth often occurs.

There are only six or seven indications for removing tonsils. They are enlarged tonsils resulting in difficulty in swallowing, talking, or breathing. Frequent attacks of tonsillitis or abscess near the tonsils is another reason for removal. Chronic or long-continued inflammation of the voice-box, or bronchi in the lungs, infection of the middle ear, or infection of the lymph glands in the neck usually require removal of the tonsils.

Persons who are carriers of diphtheria germs may have to have their tonsils removed in order to clear up this condition. An acute kidney infection or heart disease, which seems to be made worse by attacks of tonsillitis, and arthritis of the man of the joints in which there have been some changes in the tissues around the joints, may be benefited to a great extent by a tonsil operation.

There does not seem to be any evidence that removal of the tonsils will help a case of arthritis which has been present for a long time—the kind that causes deformities of the joints.

Tonsils should not be removed during an acute attack of St. Vitus Dance, rheumatic fever or infection of the heart valve. There does not seem to be evidence that removal of the tonsils will help heart valve infection, nor will their removal prevent heart disease or recurrent attacks of joint inflammation.

The tonsils should not be removed in persons with active tuberculosis of the lungs, diabetes, hemophilia or bleeding, or cancer. In general, removal of the tonsils should be avoided, if possible, during an epidemic of infantile paralysis.

The Nation Today

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON—(AP)—How does a one-man talkathon look? From where I sat it's a sad sight; bleak, lonely, and boring.

Senator Harry Cain of the state of Washington put one on Tuesday. The sandy-haired Cain, who looks younger than his 43 years, talked for six hours and 45 minutes.

Seems Republican Cain doesn't like Democrat Mon C. Wallgren who used to be governor of Cain's state of Washington.

Cain has made this known many times before. In case anyone had any doubt of it, he threw his marathon talk Tuesday.

Senate work came to a full stop. Never more than a handful of senators sat around listening of talking among themselves.

STRAY VISITORS wandered into the galleries, stared down at Cain listened blankly, and left.

Cain opened up the talk, fully prepared with a 264-page address: 79,000 words long, plus anything else he could think of to throw in.

He talked, waved his arms, pointed his finger sternly in the air like a magistrate passing judgment, raised his voice, lowered it, put a dramatic pitch in, took out the dramatic pitch, stepped forward, stepped back, put a hand in his pocket, took it out, looked very earnest and talked.

The hours dragged on. The dim light filtered in through the skylight in the senate ceiling, some newspapermen peeked in through the gallery doors to reassure themselves he was still at it and those who had to stay and listen to every word just stayed and listened.

If you ever hear that a one-man talkfest is going on, stay away.

All this started some time ago. Wallgren, before he became governor of Washington, was a congressman and a senator. While he was in the senate he became a great pal of Senator Harry Truman.

They remained pals when Truman became president. In the last election Wallgren was defeated for re-election as governor.

Truman remembered his old friend, and having won a new term himself, called Wallgren to the capital and named him to be chairman of the national security resources board.

The job pays $14,000 a year and the board's job is to see that American industry can convert quickly to war production in case of war.

AS SOON AS Truman announced the job for Wallgren, Cain got busy to block it.

The appointment can't go through unless the senate approves. And before the senate approves, the senate's armed services committee will have to approve.

This committee has held hearings on Wallgren's fitness for the job, and Cain protested that Wallgren was unfit.

Politics, said Truman. "Personal prejudice," said Wallgren. Cain replied that his opposition was "firm and honest."

And there it stood. What Cain thought he could accomplish by his long-distance talk—beyond what he had accomplished by what he said before—is not clear to me.

The senate wasn't ready to vote on Wallgren anyway, and won't be for at least a week. The armed services committee won't vote on Wallgren till next Tuesday and the full senate can't vote on him before that.

But at least Cain managed to make the senate wheels stop for a day.

There are 17,000 more miles of natural gas pipelines than there are miles of railroad in the United States.

You Too, Can Warble In Bathtub If You Follow Prescribed Rules

By TOM GERBER
United Press Staff Correspondent
BOSTON (UP) — Do they laugh when you sit down in the bathtub to sing?

"It shouldn't happen," singer Peppy Wayne says. "Anyone can sing. All he has to do is to brush up on the three R's of music."

Just let the bathroom warblers know their own voices, he said, and it would eliminate the wifely complaints about squawking seals.

Wayne, who gets no complaints because he whistles lyrics, believes most of the shower and bathtub singers have good voices, but try to do the wrong things with them.

Some are the Sinatra type and try to sing opera. Others are crooners who try to yodel.

"It can't be done," he said as he recalled an effort by Lawrence Tibbett to sing the "Hut-Hut Song."

"The opera fans screamed. The botchy-soxers screamed, too. Tibbett is terrific at opera, but he got out of his vocal circle."

The three musical R's — Resonance, range and rhythm—will put anyone in his proper niche, Wayne said, and tag him as a yodeler, balladier, crooner, light classical or opera singer.

"You can gauge your resonance by the ability to hold a note powerfully. The longer you can sustain it, the more like an opera singer you are. If you can't hold it long, you're more like a heart-patting crooner."

Several Factors
Wayne said the "least resonance puts you in the yodeling category while the maximum puts you in the operatic class."

"But that doesn't mean you can sing," Wayne warned. "There's a little more. The other R's."

First the bathroom yodeler, crooner or what-have-you has to find out whether his rhythm is fast, slow or medium and what his range is. Then he's got to stick to his specialty.

"The guy with a foghorn bass shouldn't fool around with lulling aria. A whispering crooner shouldn't try a baritone solo. Remember that," he said, "and there won't be so many complaints the next time you bounce a few notes off the tiled walls."

"Just find your groove and get in to it."

OSCARS FOR IRISH GIVEN TO McGEES

HOLLYWOOD, March 10 — (AP) — Oscar is a good Irish name when applied to the likes of Pibber McGee and his Molly.

The Ancient Order of Hibernians announced last night that its 1949 Irish Oscars will go to the radio comedians, who in private life have been Mr. and Mrs. James Jordan for 30 years.

The United States flag, according to the Library of Congress, may be flown almost anywhere 24 hours a day as long as it is for a patriotic purpose and the flag does not lose dignity.

"Safety First Week" will be celebrated by the home economics club of Goshen Union High School.

Anyone in the club wishing to participate in the Safety First poster contest may do so.

The judges of the posters will be Miss Daisy Stackhouse, William Matasy and Mrs. Alice Maloney, teachers.

The person who receives the most stars for extra work in home economics has the privilege of wearing a responsibility pin for a six weeks period.

Curley Bell and Barbara Mekser had the same number of stars for this six weeks, but since both have had the pleasure of wearing it before, it was decided to give the pin to a Sophomore with the most stars. Alice Sator was awarded the pin.

Next six weeks the Freshman with the most stars will wear it.

The Sophomore, Juniors and Seniors of the club have been shopping for a mantle, accompanied by the teacher, Miss Daisy Stackhouse. It was decided at a previous meeting to purchase an iron.

The club received a letter from the Thiers sisters in Belgium, whom the club adopted. The letter also included their pictures and a bottle of perfume was received from them. The club plans to send a package of clothing, candy and pictures to them.

ONE TRAIN ROBBER IS FAIRLY RICH

YOUNGSTOWN, March 11—(AP)—The West Virginia train robbery was staged by a rich boy seeking thrills and a poor boy after money. The information came from friends and relatives of the two bandits captured in Washington yesterday.

Luman C. "Skip" Ramsdell, 23, was described by relatives as "just a wild kid, that's all—thought he was better than everyone else." At least Ramsdell didn't need the money taken from 140 passengers of the B. & O.'s crack Ambassador. He has a steady source of income from a trust fund reaching "well into the thousands" left by his father, who died when "Skip" was still a youngster.

But Ramsdell's partner in crime, George L. Ashton, 21, is a poor boy—living in a south side rooming house with an uncle, the product of a broken home, influenced by "bad companions."

Married to an attractive blonde, who was in Miami, Fla., with Ramsdell's mother when the pair pulled the Jesse James stunt, Ramsdell maintained an expensive, modernistic apartment on Youngstown's West Side and drove the latest model convertible car. As a youth Ramsdell was popular with classmates at Randolph Macon military academy in Virginia.

After several "brushes" with Youngstown police involving auto thefts and armed robbery Ramsdell was pronounced a "constitutional psychopath" by doctors at the Youngstown receiving hospital.

Ashton, who preferred to be called "Duke," is the son of a man who had a juvenile record himself. His father, George Ashton Sr., divorced his mother in 1940, and his mother has since married Martin Ungar.

Duke's mother had this to say about him: "He's had a tough life since he was three months old. His own father wasn't a father at all. He was doing all right at home here until this happened. I'm sorry he met up with Luman. George called me from Florida two weeks ago and told me he was with him."

The mother has had tough sledding herself. Four years ago her home south of the city burned to the ground, and she and her husband moved into a trailer in nearby Poland, O. Two weeks ago fire destroyed the trailer home, and she is now living with in-laws.

Killed By Train

Howard Babb and star: Six-year-old Ginger Prince gets the top billing in his new (and second) movie, "The Lawton Story."

Babb's Hollywood Empire In Ohio

Country Boy Says More Saw His First Movie Than Any Other Picture:
He's Ready With New One

WILMINGTON, O.—(NEA)—A slicked-up, fast-talking country boy has demonstrated that neither Hollywood's perpetual sunshine nor multi-million dollar budgets nor temperamental stars is necessary to make a super-colossal hit movie.

Right in this little Quaker city—population 9971 by the 1940 census—Howard "Kroger" Babb, with $200,000, made a picture that already has grossed $8,000,000, made him a millionaire, and he thinks there should be another $5,000,000 of gross left in it yet.

Babb claims that his first movie, "Mom and Dad," has been seen by more people than have seen any other moving picture, though its showing is banned in his own state and in New York, two major markets. He says it has been seen by more than 30 million persons in a dozen countries since it was produced in 1945.

Babb started working at the age of ten because his father, a well-to-do chain store operator, had the old-fashioned idea that boys should learn young to earn a living and look after themselves. His first job was in the local newspaper office, cleaning up for 50 cents a week. He sold papers, wrote sports and advertising, and in his spare time learned to referee sports events.

In 1934, at the age of 28, he went to work for a theatre organization. Told to "write his own check," he considered the depression and made it $50 a week. Within a few weeks his boss boosted him to $250 a week. "When I saw that check," he says, "I knew show business was for me."

For years Babb had an idea that the country needed a good educational film on sex, but every movie maker in Hollywood shied away from the idea. Then he took a "Dust to Dust" film on a road tour. It packed 'em in so that Jack Jossy, an owner of the Metropolitan Theatre in Cleveland, put up $125,000 to go with Babb's own $75,000 savings, to make the film he was urging.

That film was "Mom and Dad." It was made here, and there wasn't a star in it. "Mom and Dad" is the story of a high school girl who "got in trouble," was scorned by her priggish mother and helped by a high school teacher.

After being approved for a while in Ohio it was banned—not so much because it shows childbirth and a Caesarian operation as because of the ballyhoo with which Babb presents it and the lecture on sex hygiene with which it is interrupted at one stage. Six million books on sex hygiene have been sold at $1 each, in connection with the lecture. Babb publishes them.

Out of the impetus from "Mom and Dad's" huge success Babb has built up a three-company empire that operates with 800 full-time employees in 48 countries all over the world. All three companies are HP. There are Hygienic Productions.

Hollywood Productions and Hallmark Productions. The second has nothing to do with Hollywood pictures. It is in the vaudeville business, road-showing on one-night stands, mostly in smaller cities, troupes made up customarily of a same dance band and eight or nine acts. This is said to make Babb the biggest buyer of stage talent in the country. He spends $5,000,000 a year for such talent.

Now Babb is ready to launch a second movie that he thinks may prove almost as successful as his first. It is "The Lawton Story," based on the experiences of the Rev. A. Mark Wallock, a Protestant minister who started an Easter sunrise pageant based on the Life of Christ. It is to have its premiere April 1 near Lawton, Okla., where the pageant started 25 years ago.

This picture will have a star—six-year-old Ginger Prince. Babb will sell 30 seats for $1000 each, a couple of hundred for $100 each, and the rest—in three theatres that will show the premiere simultaneously—will go for $5 each.

"It isn't a sin to make a profit," Babb says.

REP: KEEFE
BUCKS NEW
"MADE" FOOD

Synthetic Ingredients
Arouse Wisconsin
Representative

By ROBERT E. GEIGER
WASHINGTON, March 11—(AP)—"I'll have a chunk of oil, please, and a cup of engine oil for dessert."

"You wouldn't really think of going on such a diet, would you?"

But Rep. Keefe (R-Wis.) says Americans are eating some foods containing ingredients produced partly from natural gas, petroleum and brown coal (lignite) products without knowing it.

Keefe says the synthetic ingredients were developed in Germany before the war and have been used by some American manufacturers for two years. His list of products in which the synthetics may be used include bread, cake, doughnuts, cereal mixes, peanut butter, ice cream, candy, salad dressing, milk drinks, synthetic whipping cream, pickles and flavors.

Plans Meeting

Keefe intends to hold meetings with government officials whose duty it is to enforce food and agricultural laws. He believes there should be a thorough investigation to determine whether some of the synthetic articles may be harmful to persons. He believes buyers should be told, on labels, that the synthetics are present in foods they buy. This may require new food laws.

Officials of the food and drug administration (FDA) say some of the chemical compounds now are used in certain foods but that labels do not indicate their presence. That's because no standards yet have been set for bakery and some other products.

They say no harmful effects have been reported that can be traced definitely to the chemical compounds.

FDA now is holding hearings before setting standards for bakery products. These standards will define the "normal" products that can be used in bakery goods. If the synthetics are defined as "normal" ingredients, the label on the products in which they are used still would not have to list them.

Keefe says he has two important reasons for being interested. First, he says, is the health of the American people. Second, he comes from the dairy state of Wisconsin and says the widespread use of synthetic products will make them compete seriously with farm products, especially milk, butter, lard, eggs and vegetable shortening.

"I don't say these synthetics are harmful to health," Keefe said in an interview.

"As far as I can determine the scientists aren't absolutely sure about these products. It may be a long time for ill effects to show up in humans. Meanwhile, people are consuming these goods without knowing, in some cases, what they are eating. I think they are entitled to know."

Keefe's wrath is aimed particularly at chemical compounds which he says are intended to eliminate some of the milk, cream, eggs and shortening in food.

Tastes Good

"The trouble is that some of this food looks, smells and tastes even better than the kind that mother used to make out of rich milk, butter and eggs," Keefe says. "No wonder the public eats it."

He estimates that the bakery and cereal-mix industry consume about 1,300,000,000 pounds of lard and shortening annually. He said if the government approves the use of the chemicals in foods they might replace up to 500,000,000 pounds of animal fats.

He estimated the bakery industry uses about 225,000,000 pounds of powdered skim milk (the equivalent of about 1,800,000,000 pounds of fluid milk) and 300,000,000 pounds of dried eggs (equivalent to 167,000,000 dozen eggs) annually.

"You can see the threat that exists for the farmers producing animal and vegetable fats and poultry if chemicals become widespread substitutes for these natural food products," Keefe says.

"There are those who say that coal and coal tar and natural gas derivatives will ultimately supplant the cow," Keefe told congress in a recent speech.

"Scientists are making butter in Germany out of the derivatives of petroleum and coal and natural gas."

Leetonia School
Concert March 21

LEETONIA, March 11—The annual vocal concert, under the direction of W. Gwynne Jenkins, supervisor of music, will be held March 21 at the high school building.

The concert will include numbers by the A Cappella chorus, the girls glee club and the Boys Glee club with trios, duets and quartets as special features.

In Dance Recital

Barbara Lee Roese, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. Richard Roese of Leetonia, will have a prominent part in the annual dance concert presented by students at Randolph-Macon Woman's college, Lynchburg, Va., on Saturday.

She will dance in two numbers, choreographing her part for one dance, "Eranthis" The Frolic of Polly" is the major number. Miss Roese will dance in the episode entitled "Realism." She will choreograph her own dance for the interpretation of the episode "Women's Club."

Lutheran Services Held

The final afternoon meeting in observance of the Week of Prayer by the Brillhart and Sue Bixler Missionary societies of St. Paul's Lutheran church was held this afternoon in the church parlors. Miss Barbara Wiedmayer led the meditation.

Mrs. T. P. Laughner spent Monday and Tuesday with her mother, Mrs. E. C. Bohlander of Dayton and visited her daughter, Miss Joan Laughner, a junior at Wittenberg college, Springfield.

Office girls of the Crescent Machine plant will hold their monthly meeting at the Stables March 23, with Miss Florence Cushing and Mrs. Wilbur Calladine as hostesses. A large class of candidates will receive the first and second degrees at Midway grange meeting March 25.

Physical Exams For Students Advocated

COLUMBUS, March 11—(AP)—Ohio's school children need more and better physical examinations, the state director of education said today.

Dr. Clyde Hisson said a survey of 300 schools in the state showed 35 per cent had no physical examination of any kind, and another 30 per cent offered examinations which were "far from satisfactory," and 30 per cent offered physical test to athletes only.

"Two per cent of the schools reported a physical examination once every two years," the director said, "and 10 per cent reported examinations every three years. Another three per cent had tests less frequently."

Water Pistols Causing Troubles In U.S. Capital

WASHINGTON—(UP)—A baby-faced character slips into the darkened room—gun bulging from his hind pocket. Suddenly, a "shot."

A mad female runs screaming to the management, holding a limp hat feathers dripping water.

Hit on the bonnet by a squirt from a water pistol, she says.

That's what is happening in many neighborhood theaters of the nation's capital. Cops, being former boys themselves, aren't worried. But theater managers are in a fine old stew. And at least one, Sid Hoffman of the Kennedy showhouse, is doing something about it.

"I had to," he told me today. "One woman came in and showed me a beat up hat with soggy plumage and demanded that I buy her a new one. With the admission price only 50 cents a head out here and hats costing what they do these days, I can't do that too often."

Another lady said she caught a spray in the ear and wanted Sid to pay her doctor bill for an earache.

Provides Reality

So, if the kids want to play water pistols, Hoffman says he'll play along with 'em. He has hired a "toughie" who frisks each young Fry who looks as though he might be "with gun." This is a bridge table right beside the box in which the kids park their ticket stubs.

"Last Saturday," said Sid, "we had 15 runs on our hands. We put the kids' names on the handle with white chalk and give it back to them when they leave. They never forget to pick up their artillery."

According to Sid and the novelty store people, these pistols cost about 75 cents apiece and shoot a stream about 20 feet—with considerable force.

A kid gets 15 or 20 shots—through a spring arrangement inside—without reloading.

In my day, we used to have to reload every shot, whether it was a water pistol or a slingshot.

Before Sid caught on to the tricks of modern mischief, he said, the kids used to run back to the water fountain, reload and go back to their seats in the dark to draw a bead on new victims.

"I put a stop to that," he said. Then they began disappearing into the washroom, a pretty safe place.

Even guards "guards" on duty to see that the youngsters are "unarmed." Hoffman still is having trouble.

The kids, boys and girls alike, find places to hide the guns where the management can't find them. Little boys hide the water weapons in their shirtfronts under the belts of their pants. Little girls act like big gun molls and put the weapons in their purses.

"It makes Saturday and Sunday nightmares," Hoffman said.
